Two Police Officers Are Signalled by Hovering UFO

Two highly respected police officers were doubly astonished recently when they not only spotted a UFO — but actually got a signal from it!

The strange encounter occurred at 1 a.m. last July 9 in a Kingston, N.Y., park as Officers James Wallace and Richard Ramsell — both 26 and rated as “extremely reliable men” by their chief — were in their car on a routine patrol . . .

“What the hell is that thing up there?” Ramsell exclaimed as he drove their patrol car into the park.

At first both thought it was a plane.

But as Ramsell stopped the car they could see the object was simply hovering silently in one spot about 200 feet above a softball field.

Wallace and Ramsell stared in amazement.

They could barely see the outline of a strange, football-shaped object about 30 to 40 feet in diameter. There was a row of alternating red and green lights around it and a hazy white light glowing directly in the center beneath it.

“That thing isn’t even moving!” Wallace said in hushed awe.

Ramsell edged the car forward another 5 or 6 feet — and jammed on the brakes suddenly as the object began moving toward them.

“You think that’s a UFO?” Ramsell asked softly.

“Might be,” Wallace replied — and got out to take a closer look.

The mysterious object glided noiselessly toward them and the puzzled patrolmen now knew without a doubt that it wasn’t a plane or a balloon — or anything else they were familiar with.

“You better get back in here now!” Ramsell urgently told Wallace. “I want to get out of here!” “Not just yet,” Wallace replied.

“Maybe it’ll come down and we can make some kind of contact with it.”

When the object was less than 500 feet away, Ramsell turned on his spotlight.

He directed it toward the object, but the beam didn’t quite reach far enough.

“Let’s GO!” Ramsell demanded as the object loomed larger. Wallace jumped back into the car.

Suddenly a beam of brilliant white light shot out from the bottom of the object and bathed the entire cruiser in bright light!

“Let’s get out of here — and fast!”

But before the startled officers could move, the object turned off the bright light and raced away across the sky at a fantastic speed . . .

“I had a weird feeling, but I ing!” Wallace said in hushed awe.

Look! Up in the sky!

Brooklyn, N.Y. - On January 10, 1975 at about 9 P.M. I was walking toward my home in Brooklyn and out of habit looked up into the sky. It was clear and cloudless. Suddenly I saw at first thought to be a low flying plane when I noticed there was no sound at all and the lights were moving in a rotary pattern going from blue to yellow to red like a round neon sign. I watched for a few seconds when just as suddenly out of nowhere another series of lights appeared slightly above and to the left of the first. The two sets of lights began changing positions using wavy motions. They were traveling south west toward Coney Island.

Another report on the reddish substance which fell to earth after a UFO was reported to have killed a tree in Cincinnati, back in 1965, has come to attention.

On the morning of 22 July, Ed Mootz was mowing the lawn. The sun was bright and Ed wanted to get the lawn cut before the day got too hot.

Nothing unusual happened, according to the report, until he bent over to move some garden hose which lay next to a peach tree. As he reached for the hose a few reddish drops fell on his hand.

"The substance was warm and sticky," he told a reporter. "It looked and felt like watery blood, except it was oily to the touch." A moment later the stuff, now even darker red than blood, was literally raining all around him. It was like being caught in a heavy warm shower, he said.

He backed away from the peach tree and looked up. About 1000 feet overhead he said he saw a small reddish-pink cloud unlike any cloud he ever has seen before. About 50 feet above it was an object he described as a silver disc. It moved northward with the cloud, or the cloud moved northward with it.

According to the report the red stuff on his hands and arms was burning his skin. He went inside, washed it off with no trouble, but it left scars which are there to this day.

The next morning he discovered his peach tree had died during the night. The leaves were burned and on the ground. The trunk had shrunk to half the size, and in 24 hours the grass around the tree was also dead.

A representative from the USAF from Dayton took up the tree and collected the fallen peaches and dead grass to their laboratory.

No report has been made.

UFO REPORTED IN OHIO, 3 DECEMBER

A huge UFO was reported spotted along U.S. 42S, near Spring Valley, Ohio 3 December by a Xenia woman who described it as large, round and encircled with red and green rings.

Mrs. Betty Bolser told the Xenia Daily Gazette she was returning from Waynesville, Ohio, about 1:30 a.m. when the "saucer" dipped from the sky in the direction of Centerville.

"It had bright lights around it, like it had windows all around it." She pulled off to the side of the road to get a better look and it disappeared. Her best friend and her sister witnessed the sight.

UFO's sighted in area

East Flatbush, N.Y. 12-9-74

While I was waiting for a bus in the evening I looked up in the sky and noticed a light flying along. I watched it as it moved along until it was obscured by a telephone pole. I waited for it to appear on the other side of the pole, but it just didn't appear. There were no low clouds for it to get lost in. I'm sure it was not a plane, but I'm positive it was a solid object! Date of sighting 6:30 P.M. 12-9-74 The object was yellow-white, moving from north-east to south-west. The rate of speed 150 Miles per hour

Dear Mr. Rigberg:

Thank you so much for the addresses of the fellows. I hope to obtain some real research ideas exchanged with them. I was wondering if the H. E. theory has ever been suppressed from your own experiences with handling Bernard's work? Has the Federal government bothered you like they bothered Palmer, Bender and maybe even Barker?

Why all the hush- hush, too, on the 1943 Naval experiments? And what of the Bermuda Force Field? Ivan T. Sanderson seems to be accurate in what the whole matter appears to be.

I do hope I can ascertain just what the truth is. (So much shrouded in doubt and half-truth.)

Write won't you? God bless you and your business -

U.S. AIR FORCE HIDING BODIES OF 12 MEN FROM OUTER SPACE

The Incredible Story of 25-Year Coverup Nears an End as Two Witnesses Describe Bodies

The article on these pages is incredible beyond belief. It may well be the most important article ever published on the phenomena some call "flying saucers."

TATTLER Special Projects Editor John Moulder, Managing Editor Bill Sloan and Correspondent Taris Savell spent weeks putting the story together. But the two researchers upon whose work it is largely based have spent, between them, most of a human lifetime collecting the startling array of facts presented here.

If you start reading this article, the odds are you won't be able to stop reading until you've finished it. It reads like the scenario for a science-fiction classic. But it is not science-fiction. It is true.

Over a period of more than 25 years, the U.S. Air Force has seized crashed spacecraft and their dead occupants and kept them a closely guarded secret, while intimidating, ridiculing and harassing civilian witnesses who tried to reveal the truth.

This is the stunning charge made by two leading researchers of unexplained flying objects, and a TATTLER investigation has turned up concrete evidence to bear it out.

A Tampa, Fla., space seminar was jolted recently by one expert's claim that an alien spacecraft crashed in New Mexico in February, 1948, and the Air Force seized the ship and its 12 deceased tiny occupants. The expert, Robert Carr, southern director of the National Investigations Committee on Aerial Phenomena, claims the bodies are still at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Ohio.

C.M. TENNEY, a retired Businessman, happened to witness the crash of a UFO in 1953 in Montana. He was summoned to the nearest Air Force base, closely questioned, and saw spacemen's bodies in laundry bags before he was shooed away.

ROBERT CARR, southern director of the National Investigations Committee on Aerial Phenomena, says the Air Force is still holding the bodies of 12 men from outer space from a craft that crashed in 1948 in New Mexico.

The Air Force, in a statement, denied the report with a trace of ridicule.

Five years after the New Mexico incident, a Montana businessman saw a UFO crash in a ball of fire, and when the word spread he was ordered to appear at an Air Force base, where he was brusquely interrogated and saw laundry bags containing bodies of men who obviously died in the UFO crash.

THE BUSINESSMAN, C.M. Tenney, who now is retired and living in Delta, Colo., told his story exclusively to TATTLER and Robert D. Barry, director of the 20th Century UFO Bureau of Collingswood, N.J.

The treatment he received by high-ranking Air Force officials is typical of the military bullying of civilians who have reported experiences involving UFOs.

The Air Force officially closed its books on investigating UFOs in 1968 after a report by the late Professor E.U. Condon concluded UFOs are not extra-terrestrial. Many scientists have called the famed Condon Report a whitewash.

"I am convinced the Air Force knows more than they are telling about UFOs," Tenney told TATTLER.

He wrote to Prof. Condon about his experience, but Condon didn't even acknowledge the correspondence, let alone investigate it.

At the time of the incident, Tenney operated a flower shop at Conrad, Mont. He made frequent trips to Great Falls, 40 miles away, to acquire greenhouse supplies.

During one trip, he saw smoke coming from a nearby mountain. He passed it off as a forest fire, but the next day, returning to Conrad from Great Falls, he had a terrifying experience.

ON A BRIGHT, sun-filled afternoon, a shadow passed over his car. He looked up and saw a dirigible-shaped object "entirely covered with a gas or smoke that seemed to be pulsating." Dirigible-shaped UFOs are among the more common types reported.

The UFO followed Tenney's car. Becoming terrified, he accelerated, "but it followed right alongside of me."

As he neared an intersection, Tenney said, "I felt a swoosh, similar to a big truck passing, and balls of fire fell all over the road, fields and car."

Two other approaching autos were bathed in the fireballs, but the vehicles didn't stop.

"I looked in the rear view mirror and was shocked to see their exhaust tail pipes had a long trail of fire coming from them and mine was also on fire," said Tenney.

Arriving at the town of Brady, Tenney related his experience to a friend who said Tenney was "white as a ghost and his hair was standing straight up."

LATER THAT DAY, arriving back at his flower shop, his telephone was ringing. It was a colonel at Malmstrom AFB at Great Falls.

The colonel ordered him to return to the base at Great Falls "to make out a report in no uncertain terms." The base officials had heard of the incident from a Montana state trooper.

The colonel told Tenney if he didn't report to the base at 10 a.m. the next day, Air Police would be dispatched to bring him in.

When he arrived at Malmstrom, Tenney was escorted to a building that "was like going inside a jail." The two-story building, surrounded by a wire fence, had no windows.

By a Team of TATTLER Reporters

He was met by three men, one an Air Force officer, who led him to the colonel's office, instructing him to keep his "eyes straight ahead and not do any looking around." Tenney saw officers carrying packages and letters all stamped "TOP SECRET."

IN THE COLONEL'S OFFICE, Tenney was grilled extensively about his experience. His interview was typed and he had to sign it before a notary.

Four officials then led Tenney down the stairs to the front door of the jail-like building.

Tenney then saw two men "staggering in with large laundry bags" — laboring under their great weight. One of the men accidentally dropped one of the bags directly in front of Tenney.

Tenney looked down at the bag and was shocked at what he saw.

"I could make out the outline of a body. It appeared to be doubled up." Tenney saw its head, knees and feet.

"The two men grabbed me and the officer opened the door and they threw me out," Tenney said.

He added that the officer yelled at him to get out of the building immediately.

AT THIS POINT, TENNEY WAS confident his experience was over. But a day later, between Great Falls and Conrad, he saw "a ball of fire and smoke coming toward me high in the sky and also heard a noise like several locomotives or a roaring noise."

This was near where the other incident occurred.

"When it (the UFO) passed me, the fire, smoke and noise stopped and I observed a shiny object," said Tenney. "It was travelling at terrific speed. It seemed to be going in a sort of climb away from the earth."

He didn't report this to the Air Force.

"Once down there was enough for me," he recalled.

Tenney is convinced the smoke he saw from the mountain was from a downed spacecraft and the bodies in the laundry bags were from the craft.

"Otherwise, why was I thrown out so fast?" he asks.

He thinks the dirigible-shaped object he saw the second day was a spacecraft looking for its downed companion.

"I am 74 years old," Tenney said in relating his experience. "I was 53 when I saw the UFO. I don't smoke or drink and have good eyesight. I was able to pass my driver's test without wearing glasses."

IT WAS THAT SAME YEAR, in Montana near the Canadian border, that Air Force Staff Sgt. William B. Kelly, radar specialist, saw six blips on his radar screen.

"The objects seemed to keep coming right in toward our station," Kelly told a TATTLER reporter.

When the formation was 10 miles from the radar base, the UFOs performed unusual maneuvers — changing directions five times in one minute.

The objects were tracked at speeds between 1,400 and 1,600 miles per hour.

Sergeant Kelly described the radar appearances of UFOs in 1953 as "a seige."

"Three different times we had these objects and all three times very similar and very characteristic," he said. In the second and third incidents, four objects were tracked on the radar screens. In the last case, the four UFOs were clocked at 1,800 miles per hour.

The UFOs "give a better return, have a better reflecting surface, than a plane does," Kelly said.

OTHER RADARMEN throughout the country have also reported tracking UFOs on their screens.

NICAP official Carr, who retired in June after teaching mass communications for nine years at the University of Southern Florida, claims air intelligence at Wright-Patterson AFB has in its possession a 31-foot-in-diameter spacecraft that crashed three miles west of Aztec, N.M., near the Colorado state line, in 1948.

"At that time, I owned and operated a ranch in the high mountains," Carr told TATTLER. "It happened in my neighborhood.

"All major law enforcement officers were rushed to the scene and planes were flown from the nearest major Air Force base, which was Edwards. And as they landed, there was a silvery, gleaming disc-shaped spacecraft leaning on a tripod landing gear. Apparently it made an automatic landing after its occupants had died.

The craft was undamaged, Carr said, except for a small hole in the transparent plastic dome which covered the cockpit.

Because of an accident in space, Carr added, 12 small human-like beings in the spaceship died of decompression.

"THEY WERE NOT SHOT DOWN by our fighter planes," said Carr. "They suffered an operational loss. It was very fortunate that our alert radar net in the western states had the UFO on screen. In fact, three radar stations were tracking it when it fluttered out of control and fell circling toward the earth."

When officials surrounded the downed spacecraft and peered inside, Carr said, they found "slumped over and motionless 12 small men."

Airmen managed to get the door of the craft open, he added, and medical officers found the bodies were still limp and warm. The bodies were flown to Edwards, which has a refrigerated morgue.

"The President was notified, but he didn't come," said Carr. "No one knew quite what to do. The bodies were carefully preserved. They weren't green ... they were fair-skinned. All were males. They were between three and four feet in height. All had light hair, blue eyes, perfect teeth. They were superb physical specimens."

Carr said one body was selected for autopsy by a group of government physicians.

"Six doctors performed the autopsy and it was photographed and motion pictures were made," Carr said. "He (the UFO occupant) was found to have the same organs as a human being. The blood type was human. Genes and chromosomes would match up with earth women. We are somehow related and they came here because they are oxygen-breathing."

THE RETIRED PROFESSOR SAID the body appeared to be that of a man about 30 years old, but the brain - when the skull was opened - was that of somebody several hundred years old.

"Brain specialists said they had never seen a brain with such intricate convolutions," said Carr.

"It could have been a man several hundred years old who had been spared the infirmities of age ... one who had never known senility. What a gift if they could tell us how to do it!"

Carr said authorities have drawn a veil "over the most important development in the history of our time.

The cover-up, he said, has been going on since June 24, 1947, when Kenneth Arnold sighted a fleet of disc-shaped craft flying at incredible speeds in the Pacific Northwest and coined the term "flying saucer."

The Air Force's position, Carr noted, has been to treat inquiries about UFOs as something funny.

"That's the nature of man, to protect himself from the unknown by ridicule," said Carr.

"THE EVIDENCE is piling up and up; filing cabinets are bursting with photographs; the vaults of U.S. Air Intelligence have hundreds of feet of motion pictures of UFOs flying close to U.S. planes," said Carr. "In some cases when the U.S. pilot waved, the occupant of the UFO waved back ... surely not a hostile act."

Regardless of this, numerous attacks have been made on UFOs.

"It's been documented that over 1,000 planes have been scrambled to attack harmless UFOs with deadly weapons to try to shoot one down, but they've never succeeded," said Carr.

Carr has personally checked out hundreds of UFO sightings. "Most of them have been misunderstandings and misinterpretations of natural phenomena," Carr told TATTLER. "There have been a few outright frauds, and then there are those few hard-core cases that could not be explained by conventional means. Even the Air Force claims seven to 10 per cent of the reported cases do not yield to any conventional interpretation."

The respected and usually accurate Gallup Poll showed last year that more than half the American people take UFOs seriously and 15 million Americans admit to having seen unidentified flying objects.

RUSSIA, THE NICAP OFFICIAL SAID, is taking the UFO phenomena much more seriously than American armed forces.

He said Russians, like the U.S. Government sometimes treat UFO reports as a farce publicly, but that "they have highly trained teams of scientists and engineers studying this."

"For a while they thought they (the UFOs) were American, but they've stopped thinking that," Carr said. "They know now they're extra-terrestrial."

Carr's information is based on many interviews and years of investigation. He said the source of his detailed information on the New Mexico case "is a biologist who participated in it."

The Air Force is withholding its documentation on the New

IT ALL BEGAN in 1947 when a radar operator spotted a fleet of 'flying saucers' like this one in the Pacific Northwest. Subsequent Air Force investigation concluded they were not extra-terrestrial, and that is all that the public was told. Privately, however, both the U.S. and the Soviet Union are intensively investigating the phenomena, experts say.

Mexico affair on the pretense "it is for our own good" so the American people wouldn't panic.

"A second disc was found near Farmington, N.M.," said Carr. "It was half-burned with decayed bodies in there ... it had little scientific value."

Like the Aztec disc, said Carr, the Farmington disc was removed and is being kept at Wright-Patterson.

WHEN TATTILER ASKED CARR if any other spacecraft are in custody of the U.S. government, the NICAP official replied:

"There was a crash in Mexico and investigators tried very hard to find what became of the material evidence. Apparently, the Central Intelligence Agency was so well-organized in Mexico that they were able to remove the entire evidence ... to some place other than Wright-Patterson. Wright-Patterson is a sort of cover for the second-rate stuff. The really first-rate stuff is someplace in Virginia at a location I've never been able to pinpoint."

UFO researchers have been provided with additional information about the craft downed in New Mexico by a retired security guard at Wright-Patterson.

On the bodies of each of the dozen occupants of the downed spacecraft, the security guard told Carr, were manuals written in an alphabet the military has not been able to decipher.

"If the Air Force would release this, there are men on earth who would be able to do it," Carr said.

"In one body that was autopsied there were a few traces of a light meal. There were food supplies on board (the craft) in the form of a white square biscuit wafer. They were analyzed and found to be very wholesome and nutritious and fed to guinea pigs who thrived on them."

MANY INCIDENTS of Air Force coverup or disregard for UFO sightings have been reported through the years, but none are more dramatic than the incidents detailed for TATTILER by Carr and Tenney.

Dr. J. Allen Hynek, Northwestern University astronomer and one of the nation's most respected authorities on unidentified flying objects, cited examples in his book, "The UFO Experience" - serialized two years ago in TATTILER - of Air Force officials trying to shoot down the credibility of persons who had sighted UFOs.

The sources of these sightings were highly respected individuals, including police officers.

With a majority of the American public believing in the existence of UFOs, and with the widespread belief that intelligent life exists on other planets, the government may finally be ready to lift its cloak of secrecy and tell what it knows about the phenomena.

Carr predicts that the Defense Dept. is ready to "loosen up" on its position about flying saucers.

A similar prediction was made to TATTILER recently by L.J. Lorenzen, executive director of the Aerial Phenomena Research Organization (APRO), one of the nation's most respected and conservative UFO research groups.

If and when this happens, a quarter of a century of official military deceit may at last be proved beyond the shadow of a doubt.
